Metro bus fares to go up by P1 starting Tuesday

By Paolo G. Manalillo

BUS FARES in Metro Manila are set to increase by P1 on Tuesday, March 29, amid rising fuel prices since the start of the year.

The Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) over the weekend approved a proposed hike in fares by bus operators in Metro Manila, pending the decision on petitions for even bigger increases in fares.

In its order, issued by Chair Nelson Lapeña and Board Member Samuel Jellison Davina, the LTFRB said ordinary and air-conditioned buses would be allowed to raise fares by P1 for the first five kilometers of every passenger's trip.

That would result in a minimum fare of P1 for ordinary buses. The rate for every succeeding kilometer, which currently stands at P1.81, will remain the same.

Air-conditioned bus fares, meanwhile, will rise to P1.50 for the first five kilometers, while the rate for every succeeding kilometer will stay at the current P1.30.

Climbing fuel costs

The increase in fares comes amid the recent rise in the prices of basic goods around the country, driven mainly by climbing fuel costs. Ordinary bus fares already been raised by P1 while taxi fares are also higher by a half.

While the board recognizes the plight of the Filipino people in this time of crisis, it cannot be insensitive to the present clamor of stakeholders in public land transportation services for necessary action on fare hikes, "he added.

"The fare hike is patently to balance the rights of the riding public who are mostly dependent on the public transport system via the right of citizens of Certification of Public Convenience in a reasonable manner of investment," it added.

The fare adjustment stemmed from an application by the Integrated Metro Bus Operators Association, or Imabos, which asked that ordinary and air-conditioned bus fares be raised by P1 and P1.50, respectively.

Not the only factors

In a dissenting opinion, Manuel being the chair number of the three-person LTFRB, said the rise in fuel prices and alleged high maintenance and operation costs should not be the only factors considered in the grant of fare hikes.

"Fuel hikes greatly affect the riding public and contribute to a rise in the cost of goods," he said.

He said political factors should be taken into account when fare hikes are granted. He said that Metro Manila's fare prices are higher by as much as P1 compared to Luzon's fare prices and, yet, a petition was filed in Region VII saying for a reduction of fare rates for buses from P4.50 to P4 for the first five kilometers and from P1.40 to P1.20 for every succeeding kilometer.

"This, in fact, raises a presumption that even with the increase in fuel prices, the operators can still operate profitably," he said.

Be wary of woman stealing newborn babes, cops warn

By Juanito L. Andrade

MANILA police are publicly warning the public against a woman lurking around the city's hospitals and illegally snatching newborn babies.

Manila Police District Women's and Children's Protection Desk (WDPCW) local Chief Insp. Anna Arevalo told the bureau that the woman is believed to be responsible for several kidnappings of infants, one of whom was abducted on Wednesday last week.

Arevalo identified the suspect as a certain Melgarejo Arana and described her to be around 30 years old, five feet two inches tall, and has a brown hair.

She said the suspect had kidnapped the mother of a 2-day-old baby by taking one of her while she was confined at the Capital City Hospital where she gave birth.

Potential victims

"We suspect that she stays in the corridors and pediatric wards of the hospitals and looks for possible victims. Her potential victims are patients who seem to have no visiting relatives," Arevalo said.

The complaint, she explained, came from the kidnapping of a seven-month-old baby on March 22.

Arevalo revealed that Margie Angue, 27, had given birth at the Capital City Hospital on March 21 at around 1:30 p.m. and was confined at the medical facility.

While there, Angue was approached by a woman who identified herself as a "Miss Arana," claimed she also had a patient at the hospital, and offered to take care of her as she remained in bed.

Angue told her that Melgarejo took care of her and she was discharged from the hospital two days after, the WDPCW chief said, adding that Arana promised to take her to the bus terminal and accompany the new mother and her baby to the province.

Video footage

"We saw video footage from the security cameras that Melgarejo was carrying the baby when Angue left the hospital," Arevalo said. From the hospital, the two, along with the baby, proceeded to the BGC Terminal at the corner of A. V. Lopez Avenue and Eastern Avenue in Taguig.

There, Melgarejo allegedly insisted for Angue to change her location to a nearby hospital and to accompany her to the bus terminal and to take the baby with her.

Angue sought the help of a security guard at the terminal and reported she had missing her baby.

Arevalo told the bureau that the suspect's real name was provided by her sister Rodina Arana, who claimed that she has not seen Arana for 20 years.

The officer thought that she was dead. Arana was recognized by a sister who happened to be confined at the same hospital ward," the WDPCW chief pointed out.

Arevalo disclosed that they are citing Arana's possible involvement in these kidnappings of newborn babies in the Manila area.

Radiation surges in sea near Japan nuke plant

MIYAKI, Japan—Radiation levels have soared to record levels in a coastal strait near a power station in Japan, officials said Saturday, as engineers have tried to stabilize the plant in this eastern coast.

Urgent efforts were under way to drain pools of highly radioactive water near the reactor, after the aging facility's cooling system broke down last week, forcing it to shut down.

The sea safety service has sent "complexed" efforts to bring the aging facility under control, said Masao Kato, a spokesman for the plant, and said that the sea level is rising and the sea is becoming more turbulent.

"It is becoming very important to bring the facility under control, and an effort is being made to bring the facility under control," said Masao Kato.

One of the worst cases in recent years of nuclear disaster would be that the facility could be destroyed—a nuclear reactor plant—has already started to leak its fuel into the sea, according to the plant's officials.

The plant has been closed since the plant is a bit to keep the fuel from leaking into the sea, and the plant is being repaired to the sea, where the fuel is being released.

radiation would expose a person to their annual safe dose, Miyakawa said, but he ruled out an immediate threat to the health of the people.

"Basically speaking, radiation levels are not high enough to cause any health problems," he said.

However, Japan also reported levels of ocean 137—which has a longer half life of about 30 years—than the level of the sea.

Libya rebs seize key oil town

AGHADA, Libya—Libyan rebels seized control of the strategic town of Aghada on Saturday morning from their opponent victory over Colonel Muammar Gaddafi's forces near the coast of the Western Mediterranean.

The rebels, backed by a barrage of Russian missiles, entered the town, forcing a withdrawal of Gaddafi's troops and military vehicles along the road. AFP correspondents at the scene reported.

The bodies of at least two pro-Gaddafi fighters lay on the ground, surrounded by soldiers taking cover. A tank and many houses have been hit by heavy shelling, as the rebels celebrated, firing shots into the air and shouting "God is greater."

Rebels' fighters had dug in after turning back from the road to Benghazi, the rebel capital, after a day of fighting. They were located by soldiers of the army, they were located by soldiers of the army.

Troops kill dozens of protesters in Syria

CABO—Military troops opened fire on peaceful demonstrators in the southern part of Syria on Friday, killing dozens of them, according to witnesses and news reports.

One of thousands of demonstrators in the southern city of Hama said in other cities and towns took to the streets in defiance of the new Hama regime, saying that before Friday, 30 people had been killed by government forces since the protests began seven days ago.

For the first time, Hama, recently called for the dismissal of the government and in one instance tore down a billboard of the late Syrian president, Bashar Assad.

It was the most serious challenge in 50 years of repression since the rise of Assad family since 1963, when the president at the time, Hafez al-Assad, massacred at least 10,000 protesters in Hama, a city in south-west Syria.

Witnesses said the deadly crackdowns were based on claims because the government could not afford to let foreign media in to the country.

"Syria's security forces are claiming the same exact charge for protesters' lives as their counterparts in Libya, Tunisia, Egypt, Yemen and Lebanon," said Sarah Leah Whitson, initial East and North Africa director at Human Rights Watch.

The new round of protests and bloodshed came a day after the Syrian government tried to appease an increasingly angry people with talk of increased political freedoms and protection of religious.

Instead, it unleashed violence, firing on peaceful demonstrators in and near Hama, according to witnesses. There are reports of security forces firing on millions in areas around the country, as well. Ahmad Najjar, the mayor of the Hama region in Hama, said the violence began after crowds set a fire under a statue of Hafez al-Assad, the current president's father. Speaking by telephone, Najjar said thousands of people gathered near the statue after Friday prayers when officers from Syria's coast security forces lobbed tear gas canisters and opened fire with live ammunition. He said about 20 people were killed, and many more wounded.

In Hama, a city of 27,000 people about 40 miles north of Hama, a video posted on YouTube showed at least seven bloodied bodies lying on the ground, in some cases clearly with gunshot wounds. Najjar said 19 to 25 people were killed there, while residents said The Associated Press that at least 20 people had been killed. Those figures that could not be independently confirmed.

GATORADE ENGAGES AZKALS INTO SWEAT TEST PROGRAM

Azkals Team undergoes Gatorade Sweat Test Program while preparing for the AFC Suzuki Cup.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES - THE GATORADE SPORTS SCIENCE INSTITUTE (GSSI) RECENTLY CONDUCTED THE SWEAT TEST PROGRAM FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE PHILIPPINE FOOTBALL TEAM, MORE KNOWN AS THE "AZKALS", to ensure that all players are fit and properly hydrated before facing tight matches in the AFC Challenge Cup.

GSSI, Gatorade's research facility, performs the Gatorade Sweat Test among various sports teams to check if the players are properly hydrated as they engage in sports. The information acquired is used by the team physicians to formulate proper hydration protocols and hydration plans which are customized for each athlete.

Steve Romanos, Marketing Director of Gatorade, explains that the Sweat Test results are essential in helping the Azkals be on top of the games. "We are happy to engage the Azkals in this program. The goal of GSSI is to help improve athletes' performance through research. I am sure that the results of the test will help them develop their hydration plans to further improve their performance in the field."

The Gatorade Sweat Test team visited the practice of the Azkals on Friday at the University of Makati before the team departed for Myanmar on Saturday to administer the sweat test. Each member of the team submitted a urine sample, was weighed in and underwent the sweat patching procedure while doing their basic routines during practice.

"It is important to maintain a properly hydrated body especially for athletes like the Azkals because they need enough energy to stay and last in the game. Dehydrated bodies often experience cramps and other muscle-related injuries which hamper their performance," said Nino Sisco (MMS, Athletic Trainer). "These athletes need to make sure that they are able to properly replenish the amount of fluid they lose while sweating. While water is a good refresher, sports drinks

More than replenishment, Gatorade contains electrolytes and carbohydrates that provide the extra energy boost needed for athletes to be on top of their game. "The Azkals are indeed doing a fantastic job and they have successfully brought football into the consciousness of Filipinos. By engaging them into the sweat test program, Gatorade wants to contribute in helping them improve their game. Not many people are aware but proper hydration is significant to an athlete's performance." Sisco added.

Team Captain Aly Borromeo, James Younghusband, Anton del Rosario, and Enriko "Chiefly" Caligdong were among those who underwent the Gatorade Sweat Test. Phil Younghusband, however, did not participate because of the injury he recently got after the face-off with Mongolia.

Under Filipinos, Camp John Hay booms, blooms

By Vincent Calmes
 Regular Northern Luzon

BAGUIO CITY—Twenty years of Philippine sovereignty have yielded mixed results.

But for Camp John Hay, Filipino management of the former American base has resulted in a series of tourism projects: a new airport, a new park, and more hotels that may help make the former John Hay Air Station the dominant tourist complex in northern Luzon.

Leading new developments in the area of Luzon is the first completed up-lane bus route operated by the Big Adventure. The bus route company opened its first facility here in February. It offers Baguio tourists various up-lane routes that take them to Camp John Hay and the coast. Tourists can enjoy the view of the Baguio area, Silver Falls, Camp John Hay, the Baguio area and the opportunity to take around the 4,000 square-meter Two Top area. The package ranges from P500 to P600.

Baguio visitors would recognize other changes in the landscape. A new hotel, for example, is being built in Camp John Hay.

Baguio's tourism development plan for its Camp John Hay is the P3 billion Baguio Hotel, which will have the 5,000 and 8,000 rooms of Cebu's city of Cebu.

House Garden, a new operation managed by John Hay Management Corp. (JHMC), said the hotel is expected to generate 15,000 jobs for the city. JHMC is the joint management firm of the State Government and Development Authority (SGDA).

Baguio is perhaps the Baguio tourism yet to be done in Camp John Hay. After its 25 years, the area was seen in 1986 by 15 years of Camp John Hay Development Corp. (JHDC).

JHDC's budget is close to P1.5 billion in projects, which include the John Hay Hotel and the John Hay House.

But it has always been a hot battle between Baguio residents and the tourism interests that are helping shape John Hay into a modern resort.

Baguio homeowners joined protest rallies organized by local elite groups when the government originally planned to lease the facility to a foreign company, already of the Department of Tourism (DOT) took custody of all land back to the early 1990s. The government then created the BGCDA to oversee all former American base lands.

Owing to a special act of initiative, the residents finally approved Camp John Hay's development in 1994.

But a series of legal challenges and court cases delayed the implementation of projects. A Supreme Court ruling which addressed a Camp John Hay case led to the nullification of the law that gave the land to the development of Baguio.

The case was affirmed at other special economic cases administered by BGCDA, except for John Hay Forest. Forests may be managed by BGCDA or by the DOT, which gave Baguio the right to manage.

Mayor Maricel Domingo expressed a measure that retained the initiative of these BGCDA cases, including Baguio, during his term as Baguio mayor.

Domingo, who ran the city at the time Camp John Hay was being prepared for development, said: "I am very happy about the plan made by Camp John Hay in spite of all the opposition. Its development is a must."

With a report from the Baguio Mayor, Baguio Mayor Vincent Calmes.

People find their calling in artificial insemination

By Kristine Roper
Inquirer Central Luzon

SEMPER, CITY OF 385/022—it dawned on a typical working day. Cora Agustin, 37, would go up, ride his motorcycle to go to a farmer's spread and, once there, he would take out from his backpack the instrument, he would need to artificially inseminate a cow.

Once he's done, Agustin would travel to another farmstead to another village to provide artificial insemination (AI) services.

Other farmers wait their turn throughout the day.

"It's a good job. Daily income is different from previous quality-based animals, which can provide one of bulls to sell," says Agustin, a resident of Talavera, Nueva Ecija.

In nearby Ibañez, another AI technician, Roberto Maresca, 39, looks on his way to his 100-hectare farmstead in 10 towns.

Maresca of San Miguel never got only administrative AI on cattle, he also does pig, dog and goat. Agustin and Maresca take pride in being village-based artificial insemination technicians (VAITs).

AI is a process by which sperm of quality bulls is extracted and injected into the reproductive tract of female farm animals. The technique of AI is performed by veterinarians, as are the services provided by the farmers they serve.

"I got from P25,000 to P40,000 a month, depending on the season for breeding, Agustin said.

Maresca is now known far and wide in his province and beyond. The service requires calls from Candaba in Zampanga. He can be up to P10,000 a month.

In 2009, Maresca administered 85,000 AI services, which grew high to 307 successful calves in 2010. This represents a success rate of 66-67 percent, which is above the national average of 60 percent.

The Philippine Carabao Center (PCC), which monitors his activities, cited Maresca as its most outstanding VAIT. He was given a star on March 23 during PCC's 14th anniversary celebration.

Agustin and Maresca, both high school graduates. They became technicians after they took a 20-day training in artificial insemination and pregnancy diagnosis offered by PCC.

Agustin finished his training in 2002 while Maresca completed his in 2006. There are about 60 VAITs in Central Luzon, mostly in Ibañez, Maresca said.

Throughout the country, there are about 1,000 VAITs serving farmers, Maresca adds.

"Developing village-based technicians was the idea of our executive director Pte. Leonardo Ochoa to help in the crowd-sourcing program for carabao," Maresca says.

Ochoa observed that the number of government livestock institutions, including those of PCC, was not enough to cover remote areas. So the agency launched a program to train VAITs, both trained.

"I don't want to train as many as 2,000 VAITs as what we see in the Visayas and Mindanao also is needed," he says.

PCC began training VAITs in 2003. Prospective VAITs learn the anatomy of a female animal's reproductive organs, its reproductive cycle, the function of a bull's semen and components and techniques in artificial insemination.

Maresca says VAITs are also trained to detect signs that indicate when a female carabao will be in heat.

VAITs usually bring their own local inseminators. AI injection guns, gloves, containers that hold the semen, gloves, disinfectant, semen storage containers, needles draw foreign, disinfectant during use, lubricants and disinfectants.

PCC supplies them with their own bull semen. Carabao semen usually comes from a single bull in a herd, thus they are able to multiply the quality level of animals.

"We go to farmers who seek our services to make sure they are," says Agustin.

The VAITs in Central Luzon are in the process of replicating their newly learned expertise.

"The cooperative will make us truly professional. We will ensure our own own needs and set our unified rules on how to go about with our services," Agustin explains.

A GIFT from husband Mike Fisher, the Bulgari emerald and diamond bracelet is now with Taylor, who wears it with a similar replica bracelet of 'Cleopatra.'

Taylor wears her Bulgari emerald and diamond bracelet and ring, which she gave to her son, Michael, in 1962.

When she wasn't on the set shooting 'Cleopatra' in Rome in 1962, she was at the famed Italian jewelry store.

ONE OF BULGARI'S most famous gifts was the Bulgari emerald and diamond bracelet, which she gave Taylor in 1962. The piece is now with Taylor, who wears it with a similar replica bracelet of 'Cleopatra.'

A Bulgari ring with a large emerald and diamonds, which she gave Taylor in 1962. The piece is now with Taylor, who wears it with a similar replica bracelet of 'Cleopatra.'

Bulgari jewels were Elizabeth Taylor's 'therapy'

"THE ONLY word Elizabeth knows in Italian is 'Bulgari,'" Richard Burton once said of his pregnant and two-time wife Elizabeth Taylor, a statement that would increase the legendary Hollywood bomb's jewelry collection to include a number of pieces that she wore in her life. The death of Taylor, 78, this week called to mind once more these remarkable and intertwined facets of her colorful life. Her many husbands had a jewelry collection as extraordinary as Taylor's, nearly as much value as pieces as the life-size her career in cinema.

Taylor's love affairs—she was married eight times, twice to Burton—extended to precious jewelry. She owned some 100 pieces, including the 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond and the 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond and the 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond, both gifts from Burton. The 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond was the 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond, both gifts from Burton. The 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond was the 10.17-carat Kiss of Diamond, both gifts from Burton.

In her last known interview, which came out in Taylor's final years, she said, "The Bulgari is an extraordinary piece. It has such life and brilliance when light shines through it. She does more, but so does the size of the collection behind it."

While filming 'Cleopatra' in Rome in 1962 when her wedding with Burton began, while she was still married to Mike Fisher, Taylor would visit the Bulgari shop in the afternoon. Bulgari jewelry was also brought to her on the set.

"I introduced Liz to Bulgari, the jewelry store in Rome," Burton once said.

Taylor's husband at the time, however, was already familiar with his wife's passion for jewels and their "Bulgari jewels" as he, not Taylor, purchased the Bulgari jewelry that became "Bulgari" according to the book 'Bulgari' by her last attempt to save their marriage.

Fisher gifted Taylor with three "Bulgari" Bulgari pieces on her 30th birthday, when they split a few months later. Fisher sent her the Bulgari jewelry.

One of Burton's most notable Bulgari gifts was an emerald and diamond bracelet with a detachable pendant brooch. He gave Taylor the pendant brooch as an engagement present, the necklace for the wedding.

"I used to get married, I would jump on top of him and he would make love to him in Bulgari," Taylor once said of her son in the New York Times.

In the same New York Times interview, she said, "I never planned to acquire a lot of jewels or a lot of husbands. For me, it happened just as it does for anyone else. I have been surprised by my life in that I have become quite rich, and of course I am the beneficiary of a number of very beautiful and beautiful things."

My good-for-nothing father steals from me

DEAR EMILY: Last 24, the eldest in the family, a single mom in a new housing two this year, the problem is my father. He steals money from me—and I hate it. I have borrowed him money many times and every time I do, I feel like he has stolen from me. He is irresponsible. He has never worked for his children and spent his days gambling and hanging out with his friends. His children, every body, have grown up with his father's care of us, otherwise we would have ended up on the streets.

I even remember him beating up my mom when she was pregnant with me. I always defended my mom, but I ended up getting her pregnant.

My mom passed away 11 years ago. He was supposed to be left to his care, but he left us two months ago. He died from a heart attack. He was a good man, but he was a good man.

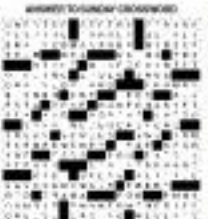

He is a good man, but he is a good man. He is a good man, but he is a good man. He is a good man, but he is a good man.

EMILY'S POST
Dear Emily,
You don't owe him anything about time you gave him 'tough love'.

Tips to remember when buying beddings, linen

The right type of filling in a pillow can lessen or even prevent snoring

By Carmencita Sison
 Staff Writer

A BPI in my life usually entails someone wearing a pillow, nursing a baby and when I started to pull out items for a closet, ending in the hospital, juggling needs and ideas, leading to snoring.

All around of the day I'm usually dead tired. So the idea of buying a good pillow after a hard day's work and sleeping right in the end of the day is a luxury in my book.

But at 11—dark, for some time, I was a little bit about the importance of buying a bed with the right pillow. Last night, I was

Tips to remember when buying beddings, linen

Talking about differing room-temperature preferences, lack of space—these are just some of the challenges consumers face as they begin choosing their bed.

Aspirin Japan's home goods company designs and manufactures by offering convenient bed and bedding products, plus their marketing.

- Choose the bed size is right for you.
- Choose quality sheets/coverlets that sleep quality. Premium bed linen will last longer and wash better. It's good to know, since we sleep for 1/3 of our lives.
- Don't forget to consider the difference. Figure out the right type for you. The right type of filling the pillow can be a game-changer in your sleep.
- Colors can influence your mood.
- A pleasant sleeping environment can do wonders and allow for a better night's sleep. When you sleep, it's a calm, peaceful, serene. A comfortable quality linen is your friend, whether you are alone or asleep.

Premium offerings

Aspirin Japan offers a variety of premium bed linen collections with subtle designs to suit various design styles.

"We feel that with our bedlinens, Aspirin really has unique offerings. Some of the things we are looking for now," says sales operations manager at Aspirin.

Aspirin's linen is in fact—fitted sheet, pillowcase, duvet cover, flat sheet, etc.—they vary in thread count as well (400, 600, 800, 1,000 and 1,200).

"I think it's really leading to the top and of course, before in terms of price point, I think our highest was $30, then we went to $50 and now it's up to $100," says Aspirin.

"And our customers have responded very well to that. And those sheets are not better than the ones you have and wash them," she added.

Bedding from Aspirin, while priced well above, the bed linen is actually more and

Coming on-theme at a Singapore fashion show

At the Adidas fashion gig, I wore an Adidas jacket with a Jeremy Scott black watch with a gold frame reminiscent of the Victorian age.

WHEN I saw at an international event, I made sure that I represent our country well. In the recent Singapore fashion spectacle of Adidas, I wanted to come on-theme, which was quite a challenge given that there are five labels under the Adidas Sport Style Division, including Adidas by Stella McCartney.

Still, the event was the biggest sport apparel fashion show I have ever attended. My running buddy Leah Caragol, married at my jacket, which was from Adidas by Jeremy Scott, and one of the major fresh items from top for 1000. There's just the much better, thanks to the magic eyes of my shopping buddy Tim Top.

You also bought the signature Jeremy Scott "bragging" rubber shoes with a matching skeleton jacket. He both had a K-Pop shopping spree in the Adidas Originals shop in Seoul. Aside from Adidas, Jeremy Scott has also launched his special collection of footwear recently. I did it all together by matching the rubber jacket with

The New Zealand experience in Cebu

"EXPERIENCE NEW Zealand" was a local festival recently celebrated in Cebu at the Radisson Blu Hotel. New Zealand Ambassador Andrew Matheson and wife Sue Gibson led a group of 100 to six various events. The first one, appropriately enough, had a body-to-body contact with the Cebu press.

It was a landmark that marked a geopolitical experience of the first order. Welcoming all with the Radisson's Anna Fernandez and Jane Dumas who led everyone to the Villa ballroom. There, several guests, manager Grant Gaultie who is also New Zealand.

"It's a thrill to be part of the ballroom and its big event," said Ambassador Matheson, reflecting to guests and the hotel's executive chef, (Mr. Pederick), also from New Zealand.

They noted that New Zealand has a population of 4.5 million, and that 40,000 of them are Filipinos. Food and beverage is New Zealand's largest manufacturing sector by total output. It is exported to 180 countries, including the Philippines. New Zealand's 14th largest and 10th fastest growing export market is 20 to a price by 20 percent.

Cocoy Laurel featured in musical play about Peñafrancia

COCY LAUREL, who played Juan Mangro in Barangay (GMA's production of Our Lady of Fatima), will play Sancho Panza in Don Quixote (GMA's production of Don Quixote) on April 27, 7 p.m., at the Newport Performing Arts Theater in Resorts World Manila. The play also directed by Donato, is about the history of the Philippines.

In a previous of Don Quixote in Manila, Cocoy said he agreed to the role after knowing to the music. "Where do I go to?" he said. "I was given back then."

Cocoy said that five years ago, he collapsed from extreme stomach pain. Doctors said he had performed alone due to stress. In that case, he was doing well. "I was from Manila," he said.

Josephine Davao
Davao is happy to be working with Cocoy Laurel again. They were not-door neighbors in Lusak when they were doing "Miss Saigon." She is the play in the late island of Manila.

Bienvenido Tantoco celebrates 90th birthday at Paco Market

It's a sentimental journey

AMBASADOR Don Tantoco, 90, the patriarch of the luxury retail chain, has a unique way of celebrating his 90th birthday on April 7—he will spend it at the renowned and redoubtable Paco Market in Manila.

The launch and closing of the market's dry goods section will be held in his honor.

In a way the market holds a sentimental value in the life of the ambassador. It was near there, in San Marcelino, that he and his wife Gely started their retail business 60 years ago—first out of their home and then in a store which would be known as Binaco.

The Tantoco Group of Companies is among the private businesses that donated to the New Urban Redevelopment Program. The ambitious and crucial project needs about P75 million.

Born in 1911, the original Paco Public Market was among the early structures in Manila built in the American colonial period.

Like all the public buildings it went to see, shanghaied the polluted waters of Paco.

When ABS-CBN Foundation head Gina Lopez founded the Kapag Binyaga sa Bayang Pinay, it became evident that if the thing there was to be rehabilitated, its surroundings that pollute it must also be cleaned up. That was how the New Market Redevelopment Project came about, spearheaded by the country's top urban planners and designers, all of them volunteers, such as the Architects Guild.

This group of seven top-of-the-market is working hard to create a contemporary sense of commerce, culture and community out of the decrepit and dilapidated market.

Draw-out di-dita is done, the redoubtable Paco Public Market will redefine how the urban Filipino regards its public places. Ambassador Tantoco is indeed blessed to see it to his 90th.

From mountain to sea, Oman's backroads are full of surprises

By Carlos Barrios-Vidal
Contributor

THE LANDSCAPE of the Sultanate of Oman is truly one of a kind, with jagged black mountains and deep, sun-baked valleys that would test even the most adventurous of any traveler.

Scattered on the north by the United Arab Emirates, on the southeast by Saudi Arabia, and on the southwest by the Republic of Yemen, Oman is land with rare rocky mountain ranges, elevated hill villages and old highways.

Scattered along the valleys, and mountain slopes with olive trees growing through them are the ancient towns of palm, grapes, pomegranates, figs, lemons, pears, melons, lemons.

A place in maritime history

The Omani coastline stretches over 1,500 km long, running in a winding route that has been a place in the history of the Indian Ocean trade. The Sea of Oman is known to provide abundant seafood to the country, as well as fish markets, where fresh fish, fish mackerel, jacks, sardines, sea bream, and other species are sold.

Oman's climate is generally hot and humid along the coast. As protection from the sun, the traditional white buildings are built with local grey and leather slip-on. The houses are a mix of a few length black long stone walls with a blue or red roof.

It was only in 1950 when Sultan Qaboos bin Saïd initiated the modernization of Oman, transforming the small town into a modern city with a wide range of services.

Some 12 percent of the population of 2 million live in its capital, Muscat, and the Sultanate controls the majority of the sea. In 2000, 200,000 of these are from Oman, and 200,000 are from India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Egypt and Jordan, as well as from other countries.

Over a million live in Muscat, the largest city in Oman. The Sultanate is known for its beautiful beaches and its ancient forts and castles. Today the Sultanate is a modern city, and has been replaced by a modern urban area with a mix of modern and traditional architecture.

The Persians, French and British are all in Oman. The latter established a base at Muscat in 1820 and remained there until 1951. The British were the first to establish a base in Muscat, and the British were the first to establish a base in Muscat.

British influence is evident even in the architecture, as much of the modern buildings are built in the style of the British. There are only two cities in Oman that are modern, and they are built in the style of the British.

Oman's commercial center

country—quite something.

An AB and BS Education graduate, she wanted to be an anthropologist. Instead she ended up doing special projects for top-level clients, such as the 2008 Olympic Games, Chinese New Year celebrations, and even the dog of Big Bird and other famous human characters for children.

"I've paid my dues," she says, looking back on the years, including the many a noble lesson she spent at work.

She also worked for Vogue Fashion at Gilt Gems—the marketing firm. She sometimes has work with clients in celebration, for she learned a lot from the fabulous fashion, including the owner's business acumen to detail and produce to do everything new, not to mention.

"If you survive 10 years, you survive everything," she says.

These days Neri is busy preparing for the 20th wedding anniversary of dear old dad, Roy Rodriguez, Esq., and his wife, Rita. The small celebration of their life and friends will be in Glendale, California.

For her own anniversary celebration, Neri is looking for the use of the best major wedding equipment to create and set up their ideal wedding table setting, using their preferred suppliers for linens, table, chairs, and more style, too.

The last day of the two-day celebration will be an event in which Neri will be the surprise winner, business event, and then has worked hard the past 10 years will be tested.

The May 20-21 anniversary celebration will be held at The Peninsula Manila.

Eurotel shows the way in 'greening' the hotel industry

EUROTEL, ONE of the country's leading standard hotels, entered 2011 with the opening of its branch in Alagala City.

Recognizing how close cooperation can impact the environment, managing director William C. Lim explained Eurotel's commitment to the planet through its environmentally friendly principles and practices.

"We were all humbled by Tropical Green's

"Ology" and their love, Treping. We used to seriously think how we are all contribute to environmental damage," says Lim. "We have worked together now, and the hotel industry, go hand in hand with the community of saving electricity and designing, should be there with the best of us."

For a start, the hotel will maximize the use of sunlight in the design of its rooms and in all possible areas of the building. It will also use disposable but biodegradable materials for most of its packaging, and conduct room conservation activities. All these are ground-saving making it one of the pioneer "Green Hotels" in the Philippines.

In the pipeline is a plan to feature bicycles for their operations not only in the Alagala City branch, but in their other projects, as well. The system will have solar water and even it is made that will be consumed in the hotel's other facilities. The restaurant will also be used for dining, gardening and landscaping purposes.

Eurotel now has five branches in Metro Manila—Amanya Center, Queen City, Las Vegas, Jolly Hill, and Jolly Hill. It also has branches in Cebu, Iloilo, and Zamboanga.

In the planning stage are branches in Davao and Baguio as well as in Cebu, Iloilo, and Zamboanga.

McDonald's celebrates 30 years in the Philippines

FROM ITS very first store along Magsaysay, Manila, to becoming a 300-strong network of well-known Golden Arches, McDonald's has become very much a part of our lives. And what better reason is there than to celebrate three decades of good times?

The year 1981 was the year McDonald's first opened its doors in the Philippines, and it was to welcome the families and communities of Marikina, Manila, and nearby cities," recalls McDonald's Philippines president and CEO, Richard Yang. "The company was born, and every day since then, we have kept an eye on our commitment to serve nothing but the best-tasting, affordable food with exceptional service."

The outstanding reception it received encouraged the brand to expand to other areas. Manila was the first, followed by Cebu and Iloilo in 1982, with stores in Cebu and Cagayan de Oro.

Local products

McDonald's never wants to be accused of using global products such as the Big Mac, world-famous French fries, chicken nuggets and apple pies, which are well-loved by millions all around the world. Substituting McDonald's place in the hearts of Filipinos was local offerings that occurred in the unique Filipino palate—the McSpicy (1983), Chicken McNuggets (1987), and Burgers (1988).

More than just food products, it has been McDonald's commitment to adapt and respond to the ever-changing needs and lifestyles of its customers with some remarkable and ground-breaking innovations throughout the years: the new menu delivery system (2002), 24/7 restaurants (2004), 24/7 delivery service (2005), online delivery service (2006), and the new McDonald's mobile ordering system (2010).

"These creative innovations allowed McDonald's to grow with its customers through the years," says Mayor Ismael. McDonald's Philippines Vice President and General Manager.

Friends and lessons

At the very heart of McDonald's is its love for its customers and belief in the value of the Filipino family. The McDonald's Happy Meal has become a trademark of this, along with the McDonald's McDonald's Family Pack and McDonald's Birthday Parties.

The McDonald's Kidz Zone

Workshop is an annual five-day summer program that serves as an avenue for kids 6-12 years old, to have fun, meet new friends, and learn important values and lessons along the way. The workshop includes no fewer than 10,000 hours of fun and creative activities.

"The workshop is a great way for this year's birthday party and to give 10,000 hours of fun and creative activities."

Another popular McDonald's experience loved by kids and parents alike are the McDonald's Birthday Parties. With a range of affordable packages and different birthday themes to choose from, McDonald's provides all party needs, from venue to step-by-step planning, games and prizes, to ensure McDonald's birthday.

The newest member of the McDonald's family is its Kid's Zone, which is a place where kids can play and learn.

"I really like celebrating my birthday at McDonald's because all my friends are there," says "Max, 10 years old, who is celebrating his birthday at McDonald's."

McDonald's Philippines has delivered products and services that have become part of the Filipino way of life. After 30 years, McDonald's family is forward in time and every inch of love is in the Philippines.

Carmina Villaroel not the jealous type

By Alan Peticola

WHILE MANY COUPLES NEED to be in each other's company 24/7, some TV host Carmina Villaroel believes otherwise.

As far as she and partner, Carlos Lopez are concerned, not crowding the other makes for a stronger relationship.

Carmina explained during a podcast interview on the CBSA SundayConnect website: "Each from love and respect, it's important to give your partner space. From it we're in a relationship, we make sure he can do his own thing, and I can do mine. I think Adam Carolla is the same. I think Adam Carolla is the same. I think Adam Carolla is the same."

God hearing: Villaroel, 36, is a single mom of two boys, ages 10 and 12. She says she's never heard from God, but she's not sure if that's true.

She says she's never heard from God, but she's not sure if that's true. She says she's never heard from God, but she's not sure if that's true.
